THE GORING SCOOPS UP ITS FIFTH MAJOR AWARD IN ITS CENTENARY YEAR

London, September 2010: At the Zagat 2011 London Restaurant Survey Awards held at Koffman's Restaurant in Knightsbridge, this week, The Goring (www.thegoring.com) picked up its fifth major accolade this year – as winner of the 'British Traditional' category, just tipping Wilton's to the post.

"At The Goring, food is serious. We make no apologies serving proper British cooking. Chef Derek Quelch and I enjoy sourcing British produce together. This award is testament to Chef Derek Quelch and his team's continuing commitment to producing outstanding British food – a tradition that we hope will continue for another 100 years."

Earlier this year, The Dining Room at The Goring was named "Consistently Excellent" at the 2010 TATLER Restaurant Awards.

The Goring Dining Room is open seven days a week. Lunch is available Sunday to Friday 12:00-2:30 pm and dinner, including a pre-theatre menu, if offered daily from 6pm to 10:30 pm. Lunch in The Dining Room is £35.00 for three courses, and dinner is £47.50 for three courses.

About The Goring

The Goring was opened by Otto Goring in 1910. In its centenary year, it is the only 5-star luxury hotel in London that is still owned and run by the family that built it. Jeremy Goring is the fourth Goring to run The Goring since his great-grandfather opened it. Deep in the heart of Belgravia, the hotel's interiors have been refreshed by some of the country's finest designers. The Dining Room, by David Linley, is a haven for superbly cooked English food using British ingredients. The Bar has been gloriously transformed by Tim Gosling in a theatrical, Empire style and last year Russell Sage completed six rooms overlooking the garden using Gainsborough Silks, and he is now working on a brand new presidential suite. Above all, The Goring reflects one family's passion for quality – whose members have prided themselves on providing comfort, good food and drink and the most attentive service for almost one hundred years.
